The Holland Coat of Arms carries the slogan: "JE MAINTIENDRAI".

To maintain the high standard of quality and service, to live up to our reputation is no small matter nowadays.

We have had to contend with adverse conditions for several years now, which made it extremely difficult to determine the proper course to be followed.

All of us are going through a process of readjustment, which means a great deal of sacrifice; we have to cope with unexpected changes, difficulties ahead, compelling us to change our course.

Yet, no matter how often we shall be forced to change our course, we shall never do so at the expense of good quality and service, but pledge ourselves to maintain such policies as have given us the confidence of our clients.

The higher prices for Holland Bulbs, which you will find in our catalog, have nothing to do with drastic decrease in the planted area of the Holland Bulb industry; these higher prices were brought about solely by the difference in rate of exchange. Considering, that, when times were normal, prices for Holland Bulbs were even higher than those quoted in this catalog, we feel that our Patrons will appreciate our present position, over which we have no control.

Terms of sale and General Directions.

We guarantee our bulbs to be true to name, the best nature produces and are willing to replace gratis any bulb, purchased from us, which does not produce a good bloom under ordinary care.

Our Nurseries are located at Noordwijk-Holland, where we grow the finer varieties of Holland bulbs, the best of which are selected for our American clients.

TULIPS

A few suggestions.

To-day so many flowerlovers have educated themselves and also been educated by lectures, shows and not to forget the many Garden Clubs and Horticultural Societies, that they do not require a great deal of advice in making their selections from a catalog for their garden. To those we can only suggest a small collection of new and unusual varieties in addition to their general order, sothat they may keep up with the new creations.

Tulips should not be used two years in succession, especially not where a fine showing is expected, but dug every year moved to the cutflowergarden, where they will be useful and new tulips planted in the fall.

In perennial borders one had best lift the bulbs when they are through flowering and heal them in somewhere in the shade, sothat they can mature properly.

Those who are not familiar with the many varieties and contemplate an extensive tulipplanting, will do best to get expert advice the first year and in addition to their order select a collection of say 100 varieties 10 bulbs of each, to be planted in their cutflowergarden.

This collection will give them ample opportunity to study the various colors and select the varieties for next fall according to their own taste and wishes.

There are thousands of varieties of tulips; descriptions, no matter how good and well worded, do not form a true picture in ones mind.

Selecting varieties for an extensive planting of tulips is not an easy matter. Colors should harmonize with those of other plants, the surroundings and background in general, and not too many varieties should be used. For such a planting one is confined to either Darwin & Breeder Tulips or Cottage and Lily flowering Tulips and even then there are varieties which are exceptionally early or late, so that they cannot be used either. Very few Cottage Tulips with their long pointed petals look well amongst the sturdy cup shaped Darwins & Breeders.

Solid drifts of tulips are effective in a long narrow border against a background of flowering shrubs or evergreens; especially against the latter strong pinks and reds do well. Darwins Breeders, Cottage & Lily flowering tulips are the most popular of all and they deserve this popularity, for there is nothing so beautiful in form as well as in color as these springflowers: besides like all bulbs they demand so little in return for all the beauty and joy they give us.

The Single and Double Early Tulips are best adapted for bedding and for windowboxes; the old fashioned round or oval beds in the lawn are still popular, and so early in spring their gay, bright colors are greatly appreciated.

Being so early they are gone by the time summer flowering beddingplants should be set out. Varieties such as Le Rêve, Cullinan, Enchantress and Mon Trésor or Boule de Neige, Peach Blossom and Couronne d'Or, all short stemmed, from 10 to 14 inches, can be recommended.

A sturdier race of Early Tulips, the Triumph Tulips, has now become popular and within the reach of every flower-lover; they are much taller and larger than the old varities and of such a strong texture and good color, that they are excellent for outdoor planting as well as forcing. You will find a good selection on page 41 and 42.

Keep your cutflower garden separate from your showgarden; it seems a pity to cut flowers, which look so much better and last longer where they are growing. One can always make room in the vegetable garden for a few rows of tulips for cutting and it is there that your trial collection and also the second year tulips should be planted.

Tulips for exhibition purpose naturally require special care and the only way to be certain of perfect blooms, is to plant them on a small bed together, were they can be easily protected against rain, sun and wind.

It is very important that the bulbs are unpacked immediately upon receipt; all bags should be opened and placed in a dark, dry and cool place, until planted.

The process of planting tulips is rather simple; a depth of about 6 inches, 3 tot 4 inches apart, proper drainage, using sand in each hole and seeing to it that the base of the bulb is set firmly in the soil, form the most important rules. We should remember, that it is not advisable to plant Tulips in the same soil for more than two years; the soil should be renewed or trenched from time to time. Well rotted cowmanure is about the best fertilizer, but bonemeal, or better yet a mixture of phosphate, ammonia sulphate are equally good.

On page 19 we have listed a complete selection of Botanical tulips, which are excellent material for the rockgarden; planted in clumps with other early flowering bulbs, such as Crocus, Muscari, Scilla and the lovely Miniature Narcissi, they give dots of gay colors, so greatly appreciated in Spring. Your particular attention is requested for our Tulip novelties; the new Darwin, Mendel and Triumph Tulips have unusual qualities; a small trial collection will give you an opportunity to study them.

We grow, grade, select and pack our own bulbs, giving you the best guarantee for select quality.

Narcissus—Poetaz.

The Poetaz group has never had the recognition it deserves. Its greatest merit is that all of them will force easily. The plants are tall and vigorous growers, bearing heads of large well-formed flowers, deliciously fragrant, and they have the great advantage over the Polyanthus types of being much hardier. Lilies.

A garden without Lilies, lacks a unique touch of refined beauty. Just like a few beautiful Orchid blooms, artistically arranged, stand out amongst all other flowers in the show window of a flowershop, a clump of Lilies in the perennial border or amongst shrubbery will demand attention and admiration.

Even though not all Lilies are easy to grow, a great many varieties will give good results under ordinary conditions of soil and climate. If anything, Lilies do not like wet soil and it is very important that good drainage is given; this does not prevent them from requiring a great deal of moisture during the growing season and they appreciate a cool soil. As a rule most Lilies enjoy shade, but will do just as well in sunny positions. For planting in shady spots, under trees, amongst rhododendrons, etc., Lilium Henryi, Hansoni, Martagon and Auratum and for the borders Lilium Candidum, Testaceum, Regale, Browni, Monadelphum Szovitzianum, Speciosum and Auratum, are recommended.

Good porous gardensoil, not too heavy, plenty of leafsoil, sharp sand for drainage, is all that is necessary to make the Lily bulb feel at home. Be careful to follow directions as to depth of planting, which depends upon, whether the variety makes stemroots or not. The stemrooting varieties should be planted from 8 to 10 inches deep, that is from the top of the bulb to the surface, whereas the other varieties should only be planted from 2 to 4 inches deep.

The Lilies offered in the following pages are all hardy and will give good results, if properly planted and will flower many years in succession. By selecting the proper varieties, you may have Lilies in bloom in your garden from June on until September.

Bulbs for forcing.

Regardless of facilities, whether a large greenhouse, a conservatory, or even a well-heated sunparlor or room, there will always be possibilities for the forcing of bulbs during wintertime. We know of an able gardener on a newly established estate, who used to force Narcissi, Hyacinths and Tulips near the kitchen stove.

After the Chrysanthemums are over, what could we depend upon, during the dark wintermonths, if it were not for the early forcing bulbs, such as Narcissi, Hyacinths, Freesias, etc.? Whenever flowers are scarce, those, who have a stock of bulbs in pots or flats in their rootcellar, or buried outside, can always fill in and easily figure ahead of time, when they are needed. And in a small conservatory or a heated sunparlor nothing could be grown easier.

Bulbs of good quality have a perfect flower already in their heart and with reasonable care will produce same.

Freesias.

The best time to plant Freesias is August; use a light sandy soil, decomposed cowmanure; the pots or flats should be buried outside in a cold frame, to keep them cool and stimulate rootaction. The first batch may be brought in the greenhouse around November 15th.; grow them cool by all means, because Freesias will not stand forcing and give them plenty water. After the buds appear, apply liquid manure and if necessary give them a little more heat.

These consist of the largest and finest selected bulbs of the Dutch Hyacinths and are best used for potwork. After they have been dried and stored in a cool place, they should be potted up in a light sandy soil; do not use new pots, unless they have been soaked for some time. Before plunging them in a cool spot, the ground should be soaked; a layer of sand on top of the pots, to prevent damaging the crowns, when removing the pots during frost, is advisable. When bringing them in the greenhouse, keep the bulbs in subdued light, until the bud is sufficiently grown out of the bulb; temperature about 70 F., a little lower when the flower is visible.
